Two endorsed races were too close to call at the time of press: Assembly Districts 45 and 70 with endorsed candidates Jeff Klett, John Spiros and Steve Zdun, respectively.

“We are thrilled with how well our endorsed candidates did last night,” said Julaine Appling, Director of the WFA PAC. “There were so many pro-family, pro-life, pro-liberty candidates in the primaries last night that in some cases, voters had to choose between two or more good candidates! Each of these candidates is solid on the issues of marriage, family, life and liberty and we encourage Wisconsin voters to support these candidates with their time, money and vote. We’re excited about the prospect of having a pro-family, pro-life, pro-liberty atmosphere in the State Capitol this next year.

“We wish each candidate the very best in the next two months of grueling campaigning for the November 2 election. Although last night was exciting, the race is not over yet. This is the time for individuals to get involved, support these candidates and make a difference in the November 2 election.”
